

Contents

	Acknowledgments	vii
	TRANSLATOR'S INTRODUCTION	ix
	Carlos Rojas
1	He Who Has Been Selected by Heaven and Life to Appreciate Darkness	1
2	National Amnesia and Literary Memory	9
3	The Abjection of Alt-China and Its Literature	20
4	The Wild Child That Is American Literature	34
5	My Thoughts on Literary Censorship and Controversy	48
6	My Literary Review Book	64
7	The Distinctiveness of Writing in China	76
8	Fear and Betrayal Have Accompanied Me throughout My Life	90

9	Writing under a Sky of Concentrated Power and Relative Laxity	107
10	Living without Dignity but Writing with Honor	121
11	My Ideal Is Simply to Write a Novel That I Think Is Good	133
12	A Village's China and Literature	148
	AFTERWORD	165
	Ripping Open the Dreamscape
	Biographies	169
	Index	171